

LaTarasha Tate aka "Tasha Tate" is a hometown girl from Memphis, TN. She graduated from East High School, received a Bachelor of Science Degree from Christian Brothers University, and an M. Ed from Grand Canyon University. She served as a principal at private school (FDW Christian Academy, Memphis); a media producer with Bountiful Blessings Ministry and TOD COGIC; a Real Estate Agent, and she is currently an educator with the Memphis-Shelby County Schools teaching Economics and IB Social and Cultural Anthropology at Germantown High. Tasha is also the CEO of GeNeX Career and Consulting where she offers mentorship and support to secondary and post-secondary students as they prepare for careers, finance, and future endeavors.

She has always enjoyed working with youth in the community and at her local church because she believes in the philosophy that was passed down from her former boss: “that every child is a gift from God. We, as educators, must get to know each student and unwrap the gifts and potential that God has invested in them from the time He formed and shaped them.”

Tasha enjoys writing. She has a unique gift for telling stories through poetry. This gift has afforded her many speaking opportunities around the city and a few published works.

She believes in striving for excellence, and she loves to pay it forward. She especially believes in empowering today's youth with the Word of God and teaching them to have a Right Relationship with Him instead of a Religion. Her greatest desire is to live so God can use her to be the mirror that reflects His image.

I WAS DRESSED UP BUT STILL MESSED UP: Until I Put On Christ

Like many of us Bible-believing Christians, we wear our guilt, shame, jealousy, pride, judgment, and condemnation like clothing. Thinking that to be normal, we ultimately cripple our walk with God because we consider man's standard for righteousness over God's. If we ever decide to look into the mirror of God's Word, we'll see how our outwardly dress is seemingly clean, but messed up inwardly. This poetic book illustrates my spiritual transformation of choosing faith, service, and devotion to become my new wardrobe. I Was Dressed Up But Still Messed Up: Until I Put On Christ will challenge you, stretch you, and remind you of the spiritual makeover your soul deserves. Let this be an encouragement to cast off the old and put on the new as you strive to reflect Jesus to this world.
